HISTORY of The Night Drawer

The Night Drawer emerged from a weekly drawing club that had been drawing for a few years at local bars and restaurants. Mostly people just worked on their own drawings, although there were frequent collaborations and drawing jams.

On April 21, 2019 we decided to make a weekly zine together. It was at the Wayside Cafe and the first one only had 3 artists and no prompt.

But we kept meeting every Sunday at 7pm and each zine got a bit bigger. By the 25th zine (Plant Life, 10/6/2019) we moved locations to Le voyeur. Later that month the Night Drawer appeared at the 2019 Zine Fest. After 46 consecutive weeks, featuring 100s of different artists, the pandemic happened.

On March 15, 2020 the Night Drawer moved online, and stopped making physical zines.

Using Zoom and Google Meet the Night Drawer continued, and even got to include faraway artists.

The email newsletter began as a way to share the drawings and we kept counting "issues" each week.

When Le Voyeur reopened in 2022 we had made 167 issues of the Night Drawer. We felt safe enough to meet in person and on July 3rd 2022 we were back at Le Voyeur. Instead of making issue 168 we decided to reboot at #1 of the New Night Drawer. And that's the story so far. Come down this next Sunday and draw with us!
